ELECTIONS 1916 AND 2016: WHAT HAS A CENTURY CHANGED?

David Zarefsky, Professor Emeritus, Dept. of Communication Studies

In 1916, when The Alumnae of Northwestern University was founded, the U.S. was in the midst of a hotly contested national election. The Republican Party, having healed from its split four years before, nominated Charles Evans Hughes to contest Woodrow Wilson's bid for reelection. The race went down to the wire. A century later, we are in the midst of one of the most unconventional election campaigns in modern times. Professor Zarefsky will discuss the rhetoric and politics of these two campaigns and will consider how campaigning for the presidency has changed over the past century.
